

Soviet Expulsion Of Tourist Heads For Happy Ending

BATH, Me., Oct. 15 (AP).—

Expelled or not, it's a happy ending" says the wife of a man who was thrown out of the Soviet Union.

Mrs. Harvey C. Bennett said she was certain her husband did nothing wrong in Russia. "There was no reason for him to have done so," she said.

The State Department reported yesterday that Mr. Bennett and Mark Kaminsky of Cass County, Mich., who entered Russia as tourists July 27, had been expelled from the country. They had dropped out of sight in mid-August.

Said Mrs. Bennett on hearing the news: "I feel a lot better." The Bennetts have three children, and Mrs. Bennett said she had been telling them their father would be home soon—"and hoped I was right. Now I can tell them and know it's true."
